The Uplay Files, Assassins Creed 3, Assassins Creed 3, Assassin's Creed 3 (The Tyranny Of King Washington), Crack.Q: How to reduce the performance on mysql php I have a large table with approx. 300,000 records with 30 columns. I have to process a filter on every user and every record. The table is in the structure below, and the output is a simple SQL query, one of the user actions is to filter every table. I have to update every row and insert the new value in the new column (in the example, I will get an array of value 0, 1, 1, 0, 0, 0...) If I perform this operation for a very large number of users, the program will be very long. What can I do to reduce the performance? I have the query below, but I don't know what to change or how to improve it: $sql = "UPDATE table1 SET flag_from=? WHERE id_in = '".implode("','", $Sids_from)."'"; $query = $this->mysql->query($sql); I need to send an array of id_from to the query, but I'm not sure that I can send the Sids_from without losing the performance. Can I do something in my php code to improve the performance? A: First, with this type of query, it is generally a good idea to avoid sending the columns in the UPDATE because this is a very inefficient (CPU bound) approach to doing a massive UPDATE. This means, if you have 30 columns, you are sending over 30 UPDATE statements, one for each column, which is inefficient. Instead, try this: $Sids_from = array_map('intval', $Sids_from); $sql = "UPDATE table1 SET flag_from = '".implode(',', $Sids_from
