They should be aiming for all the amenities they can offer. Payday loan, credit card services, checking accounts, etc. in this day and age where we're all really trying to separate ourselves from the "big banks", they're really missing out. All they have to do is start offering interest free loan accounts for people that are clearly a financial fit. Those that fail may learn their lesson and not use it again but those that succeed should be rewarded for their continued success. ~~~ tsunamifury It's impossible to say what would happen to the CDP and HRA offerings if companies started offering interest-free loans. Imagine a credit card that offers 1-10% of the balance on your entire cardbalance. And then it does this for 3-5 years. Then imagine that everytime you do a transaction and have the IRS deduction the amount to your account... Someone else gets to see how much money you have made or lost. Obviously there are checks in place to prevent a situation like this, but a finance company should be absolutely be free to offer interest free options for those that can't afford it. As it stands it only encourages people who need to borrow money to the loan industry. ~~~ sjg007 Yeah. I think you could get rid of APR in the US if you make the loan generous enough. Association of High-grade Prostate Cancer and Bladder Cancer With C-reactive Protein and Soluble Intercellular Adhesion Molecule-1. We aimed to investigate the relationship between systemic levels of C-reactive protein (CRP), and soluble intercellular adhesion molecule-1 (sICAM-1), and histopathologic characteristics of prostate cancer (PCa) or bladder cancer (BCa). We examined serum CRP and sICAM-1 levels in patients with high-grade (HG) PCa or BCa. These levels were compared with those of patients with low-grade (LG) PCa or BCa, patients with no evidence of PCa or BCa, and healthy volunteers. We also examined the relationship between CRP and sICAM-1. We analyzed patient characteristics, histopathologic findings, and serum biomarker levels in PCa and BCa patients. A total of 129 patients with PCa and 65 with BCa were studied. Serum CRP and sICAM-1 levels were significantly higher in patients with HG PCa and BCa than in those with LG PCa or BCa, and patients with no evidence of PCa or BCa. CRP was found to be higher in the HG group than in the LG group in both PCa and BCa. Moreover, sICAM-1 levels were significantly higher in BCa than in PCa. However, there was no correlation between CRP and sICAM-1. Both CRP and sICAM-1 levels were significantly increased in HG PCa and BCa patients. CRP levels were significantly higher in HG PCa and BCa patients than in patients with LG PCa or BCa, and those with no evidence of PCa or BCa.
