How to use the new weapons effectively

The new weapons in Season 10 are Echo and M4LMG - Moonstone. Here are some tips on how to use them effectively:

- Echo: This shotgun is very powerful at close range, but it has a limited magazine size and a slow reload speed. You should use it in small maps or areas where you can surprise your enemies with a quick burst of fire. You should also aim for the head or the chest to maximize the damage. You can use attachments such as extended mag, laser sight, suppressor, and fast reload to enhance its performance.

- M4LMG - Moonstone: This light machine gun is very accurate and stable, but it has a low fire rate and a high recoil. You should use it in medium to long range maps or areas where you can provide cover fire for your teammates. You should also aim for the head or the upper body to deal more damage. You can use attachments such as foregrip, red dot sight, quickdraw mag, and FMJ to improve its performance.

How to play the new mode strategically

The new mode in Season 10 is Headquarters. Here are some tips on how to play it strategically:

- Headquarters is a team-based mode where you have to capture and defend a random location on the map. The team that captures the location first becomes the defenders, while the other team becomes the attackers. The defenders have to defend the location until it is destroyed by the attackers or until the timer runs out. The defenders cannot respawn until they lose the location, while the attackers can respawn unlimitedly. The team that destroys or defends more locations wins the match.
- To play this mode effectively, you need to communicate and coordinate with your teammates. You should also use different loadouts depending on whether you are attacking or defending. For example, if you are attacking, you may want to use a fast and agile loadout with SMGs or shotguns, while if you are defending, you may want to use a heavy and durable loadout with LMGs or snipers.
- You should also pay attention to the map and the location of the headquarters. You should try to capture or defend the headquarters as soon as possible, but also be aware of your surroundings and potential enemies. You should also use grenades, smoke bombs, or other tactical equipment to clear or secure the area.
