Who is Lord Dattatreya?

Lord Dattatreya is a unique and mysterious deity in Hinduism. He is considered to be the combined manifestation of the three supreme gods: Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva. He is also regarded as the first and original guru of the Nath sect of yogis, who practiced a form of Tantra that aimed at achieving liberation from the cycle of birth and death. He is also revered as a patron of arts, music, medicine, and astrology.

Lord Dattatreya has many names and titles, such as Datta, Dattaguru, Dattatreya Narayan, Avadhuta, Digambara (the naked one), and Sripada (the one with auspicious feet). He is usually depicted with three heads, symbolizing the three aspects of the divine: creation, preservation and destruction; or the three states of consciousness: waking, dreaming and deep sleep. He has six hands, holding various symbols such as a conch, a discus, a lotus, a trident, a water pot, and a drum. He is accompanied by four dogs, representing the four Vedas, and a cow, representing the earth and abundance. He sits under an audumbara tree (a type of fig tree), which is said to grant wishes to those who worship him. $[^1][^3]$
